InSEA Newsletter January 2015

As art educators we share a deep sadness after the terrorist attack to Charlie Hebdo in Paris 7th January 2015. Now more than ever before we need to maintain our faith in education, to uphold our belief in freedom of speech using images and words, and to pursue humanistic values that encourage peace.

NEWS FROM the UNESCO International Conference of NGOs, held from 15 to 17 December 14.

The speakers' interventions and the interaction with the audience, as well as the resolution and the recommendations adopted as the outcome of the Conference are:

"Mobilize, raise awareness, to convince and change" were the words resonating throughout the panels taking place around the themes that are important to us such as quality education, youth and safeguarding of cultural heritage, water and sustainable development, or the protection of the environment". (SOURCE: letter to NGOs partners of UNESCO).

To celebrate;

8 March 2013 – International Women's Day

The second Ebook, titled Gender Perspectives in Case Studies Across Continents: Volume II, published by the Global Network of UNESCO Chairs on Gender, is available in English. This volume comprises case studies from nine countries that address challenging global priorities: gender gaps in education, women's livelihoods and political voice, confronting domination, and activism across the decades. The authors are UNESCO Chair-holders, and Partners and affiliates of the UNESCO/UNITWIN Network on Gender, Culture and Development. You can access the document here.

2nd edition of KidsFest in TUNISIA: (SIDI BOU SAID)

The Kids festival is an amazing arts education activity including art and games' activities for hundreds of children . Susanne Prahl, a key organizer of the festival says:

'The point is, this type of event could and should exist everywhere and address the local communities and create a global symbolic outreach uniting youngsters over the world - in this time, especially the Paris drama shows us clearly, we need to unite in a common " frontline" against racism, violence and religious fanaticism. ART is one element that contributes to wider horizons and talks to people of all backgrounds'.
