

InSEA ART Education Visual Journal (IMAG) Guidelines for Authors:

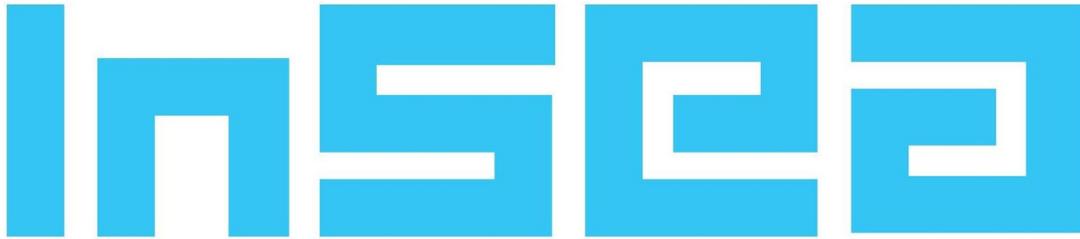

The editors welcome visual essay submissions to InSEA's Art Education Visual Journal (IMAG). The visual essays in IMAG showcase innovative stories from art educators and teaching artists that model a wide range of learning environments, and inspiring experiences through the creative process, art making, and reflection. A visual essay differs from a research-oriented, text-based article in that the focus is on how images and art work with accompanying text convey meaning, offer new ways of knowing, and tell inspiring stories. Submissions that provide alternative, experimental, and varied artistic modes of presenting practice and inquiry are welcome. The following is designed to help authors in creating and submitting a visual essay:

Guideline in choosing images for IMAG:

1. All images will tell the story of the essay focusing on both process and product as well as development over time
2. All images strongly communicate rather serve as an example of the text. Images are well integrated with accompanying written text.
3. 5 images or more are suggested to complete a visual essay.
4. All images of people will need completed consent forms.

Guideline for IMAG visual essay texts:

1. Include title, author(s), affiliation, 5 words or phrases describing content of visual essay
2. The maximum for the IMAG visual essay is 1000 words. The following may be used as a guide:
 - a. Introduction (75- 100-words): Briefly describe the essay topic, purpose, and context. Include any visual art education research and/or reference if appropriate.
 - b. Process (500- 700 words): Describe what was being investigated and what happened in the creative activity. What materials were used and why? How was the creative process engaged? What was structured and what was left open for exploration?

- c. Reflection: (100-200 words): Describe what was learned through this learning activity. What will those involved (students, teachers, artists, community members) take away? What might be next? Reflections may include quotes, references to images, examples of growth and artistic exploration, connections to broad topics.....
